

Pedagogy Grounded in Reality: Incorporating Chattel Slavery's Contribution to Higher Education

Dr. Tara Barca is the Academic Director of Online Business Programs at CUNY School of Professional Studies (SPS). She began teaching at SPS as an Adjunct in 2010. During her time with SPS, Dr. Barca has served as Assistant Academic Director, Consortial Faculty, Academic Community Leader, Governing Council Faculty Representative (Division of the Sciences), Prior Learning Assessment Faculty Assessor, Online Teaching Essentials Workshop Facilitator, Course Developer, and CUNY BA Faculty Mentor. Dr. Barca holds a Ph.D. in Management with a specialization in Leadership and Organizational Change as well as an MPhil in Management from Walden University, an MBA in Human Resource Management from the University of Phoenix, and a BA in Philosophy, Politics, and Law from SUNY Binghamton.

Linda L. Ridley, Ed.D., MBA, Doctoral Lecturer, Business, CUNY School of Professional Studies (SPS) and Hostos Community College - Dr. Linda L. Ridley has been teaching Business, Management, and Organizational Behavior & Leadership at CUNY SPS and Hostos Community College, both graduate and undergraduate, since 2010. As CEO of a global consulting firm focusing on change management, Dr. Ridley has been designated an Expert Consultant by the Asian Productivity Organization (APO) of Tokyo. Prior to consulting, she spent over two decades in investment banking at Wachovia Securities (now Wells Fargo Advisors) overseeing internal client services nationwide and Canada. Among her honors, she is a 2022 Faculty Fellow with the U.S. Department of State's Aspen Institute Stevens Initiative. Dr. Ridley earned her doctorate in Administrative and Instructional Leadership at the School of Education of St. John's University as well as her MBA from the Mason School of Business at the College of William and Mary.