

Sen. Bennet is hosting listening sessions throughout 2022 in anticipation of next year's reauthorization of the Farm Bill. Colorado has a unique perspective on U.S. Department of Agriculture programs that are authorized in the Farm Bill, whether it's conservation, commodities, disaster programs, rural development, forestry or nutrition. Bennet wants to make sure Colorado's voice is part of the national discussion as Congress starts to set the stage for the new legislation. In 2017, Bennet organized two dozen staff-led Farm Bill Listening Sessions around the state. This year, Bennet kicked off his listening sessions with roundtables in Pueblo and Fort Collins in April and May. Another 8 listening sessions were held in June on Colorado's Eastern Plains, and 5 more were held in August on the Western Slope and Northwest Colorado.
